A Splendid Entertainment.

On Christmas night the citizens of Columbia were given an opportunity to attend a musical and literary entertainment at Page's Hall. It was gotten up by Mrs. Rollin Hurt and Mrs. Jo Rosenfield and it was first-class in every particular. The music was the principal feature and no better selections could have been made neither could the pieces have been rendered more admirably. Mrs. Hurt has been teaching and training the young people of Columbia several years and she can justly feel proud of this entertainment. Mrs. Rosenfield assisted in arranging the program and took an active part in the exercises. The program was not too long and it was carried out faultlessly. The following persons took part in the music: Miss Gertrude Grady, Mrs. Rosenfield, Mr. W. S. Barker, Dr. O. S. Dunbar, Misses Lula White, Mabel Atkins, and Lina Rosenfield, and Mrs. Rollin Hurt, all of whom have well trained voices and especially were they pleasing upon this occasion. The singing and acting of Miss Lina Rosenfield deserves especial mention. What she does is done perfectly and everybody praised her effort. The doll song by little Mabel Atkins was rendered perfectly; the solo by Miss Lula White delighted the audience and the recitation by Miss Grace Bain was splendid. The Soldier's Drill by twelve little girls attracted the attention of all present, so accurately did they go through the manual of arms. The exercises closed with a comedy in three acts—eleven female characters. The players were well up with their parts, not a mistake made. When the curtain dropped all repaired to their respective homes, feeling that they had been well paid for being out on rather an inclement night.

The Old Maid's Convention.

An entertainment somewhat out of the ordinary was given at Page's Hall last Wednesday evening. Mrs. Nona Cabell and Miss Mattie Taylor were the promoters and it goes without saying that it was gotten up especially to please. "The Old Maid's Convention" was the principal feature, and about as amusing lot of characters as we ever witnessed were on the stage. Twelve or fifteen ladies comprised the Convention, representing different States, each delegate being on the road to matrimony. Several amusing papers were read, and many laughable hits. All the delegates carried their parts to perfection. Miss Mattie Taylor went a little beyond and brought down the house. The song "I wish I was a sparrow," by Mrs. Anna Poore, was simply killing.

Besides the convention there were music, charades, etc. The playing of the McGarvey children—violin and cornet—could not be surpassed by professionals; the singing of the little girls was delightful, and the song and cake walk, by Reed Shelton and Nancy K. Flowers; Ray McGarvey and Nina Marcum kept the audience in a roar of laughter during the whole of the time they were on the stage.

All who took part evinced that they had been well trained, a compliment to the promoters, who can rest assured that the large audience was well pleased with the entertainment.

Ewing was the officiating clergyman. In every respect it was a most beautiful wedding. At the appointed hour, 10:30 a. m., the couple entered the parlor proceeded by their attendants, while a wedding march was being played by Miss Fann Hancock, and at once the solemn ceremony was pronounced.

The bride was robed in a lovely satin trimmed in white silk lace and shine stone buckles. The groom was dressed in black. W. P. Epperson Dead.

The subject of this sketch was born and reared in Adair County, and for several he was a young business man of Columbia, having been a clerk in Mr. A. Gilmer's store, and subsequently a partner of Mr. J. O. Russell in the mercantile business. He left Columbia about eighteen years ago, going to Texas. Remaining in Texas several years he removed to Missouri where he was residing at the time of his death, which occurred the 12th of December, 1899. He was afflicted with typhoid fever and was sick several weeks, receiving the best attention.

The deceased was about forty years old and leaves a wife and two children. He was a nephew of Mr. J. J. Epperson, who lives near Montpelier, and when he left Columbia there was not a more popular young man in Adair county. Nearly everybody in Adair knew "Pete" Epperson, and the intelligence of his death will be received with sadness.

All my notes and accounts are now due. If you do not like to receive a statement by mail, please call and settle, as I must collect all debts at once.

Stokes, of Stokes, Ky., she was a popular and charming young lady of that community and is greatly missed by all. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Vaughn. He is a thriving merchant of Lula, Ky., but recently moved to Russell Springs, where he is still in the mercantile business.

The happy couple immediately departed for Mr. J. Vaughn's, where a reception and a feast was enjoyed by all. They begin their married life with the best wishes and congratulations of a large circle of relatives and friends.—C. M. C.

Dr. John Wise, optician, late of San Francisco, California, now Campbellsville, Ky., will be at the Hancock Hotel, Columbia, Ky. for two weeks. Those needing glasses properly fitted to their eyes should give him a call. He uses the new methods in science of detecting errors of refraction and correction of same in fitting glasses, without the use of a mydriatic or putting any kind of medicine in the eyes. Headache or neuralgia caused by eye strain immediately relieved. Those wishing to favor him with their patronage should call early, as in many cases he has to make a prescription and have the lenses especially ground. He is endorsed by the medical profession and can give good references with long experience in practice. Prices reasonable.

Jamestown W. C. T. U.

The Jamestown W. C. T. U., held a "Gospel Temperance meeting" on the evening of December 24th.

Appropriate music was well rendered. The solo, "He's a drunkard to night" was touchingly sung by Mrs. W. S. Stone and brought tears to the eyes of the audience. Mrs. Arthur Baugh sang in her clear, sweet voice "Save O Save the Boy." Master Will Bradley's recitation "I'll drink what father drinks" was sweetly rendered and deeply moved the audience.

Elder Arthur Baugh delivered the Temperance sermon, subject: "Is the boy safe?" His address was sublime and his eloquent personation moved the audience to tears.

The services closed with the song "When Christians vote as they pray."

On the first page of this issue of the News will be found a story entitled "A Kentucky Romance," written by Mr. J. E. Murrell, of this office. Mr. Murrell, some time ago, related an occurrence which happened in Adair county many years ago that was clouded in mystery, and which furnishes the base of the story. He was solicited to write the story for publication in the News, which has been done, and as above mentioned its beginning appears in this issue. The readers of the paper will find the story to be pathetic as well as romantic and when the last chapter has appeared, we feel that you will consider it good in every detail.

I am this week preparing my annual clearance sale. Look out for bargains. 2w. W. L. WALKER.

Mr. Joe Sherill, son of Mr. Archy Sherill, of Gradyville, is very low with lung trouble. While he is suffering much, he is cheerful and has a good word for every one who calls to see him, and is bearing his sufferings with great patience. He seems to get comfort out of his suffering; that it will not last always, and he says that he is ready to go and be with Jesus when He calls. It is a blessing to be with him and talk with him about his future prospects of heaven. I hope that he may be spared yet a long while to bless the world by trying to make it better with his Christ-like conversation.—A FRIEND.

At the residence of Robert McKinley, in Russell county last Thursday, Mr. J. V. Lapsley and Miss Clementine McKinley were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Rev. R. B. Grider officiating. Here's the wishes of the News that they may have a long and happy life.

Young man, if you failed to meet 1900 with a smile and a glad heart it must have been your own fault. If by your own acts your life has been saddened, remember that now is the time to begin anew. We admonish you to abstain from strong drink. Whisky has wrecked more useful lives, darkened more bright, happy homes, and plunged more individuals into despair than any one agency of crime and disaster. We are informed that a large part of the express that arrived in this town on Saturday and Sunday before Christmas was composed of jugs. We do not know the recipients, but regardless of who received them it was a bold attempt to lower the moral standing of this town and community.

We have nothing to say as to the effect of this jug crusade, as the people of this town are even more familiar with its effects than we, but we trust that those so unfortunate as to be participants of the wrecking fluid will consider that no one has been benefited and no one blessed. These are treacherous days, and unless you guard well your own life may prove worse than a failure. Resolve not to drink; keep that resolution and bring happiness to your own home and community.

Last Monday evening the young people of Columbia were very pleasantly entertained at a social given at the Hancock Hotel. Notwithstanding the extreme cold weather a very large crowd was present, and it goes without saying that all spent a very pleasant evening. During the evening refreshments, consisting of cakes, ices, etc., were served. Some very delightful music was rendered and when the hour for departure came all united in saying that it was one of the most enjoyable evenings of the season.

Hon. Geo. E. Stone, one of the best lawyers in Kentucky, a citizen of Liberty, and well-known in Columbia, was married to Miss Mary Hall at Monticello last Sunday. The bride is also pleasantly remembered here, having been a student in Columbia Christian College some years ago.

Any thing you may need in my line, come and see my goods and get my prices. I am always at bottom on everything. I will offer a lot of bargains during the month of January. They can not last long.
